Obtaining CE or PD Credits for the LifeWays EC Certificate Training

LifeWays EC Certificate training qualifies for Continuing Education or Professional Development credit in most states around the country. As a standard, we issue a certificate of completion to students who have fulfilled the requirements (listed below) including the full 210 hours of in-person classes, outlined in our Core Curriculum document, at the graduation ceremony.

We recognize that some states require specific itemizations and formats for the training to qualify for CE or PD credit hours. As a small organization that trains in all 50 states and beyond, LifeWays does not have the capacity to maintain a system that tracks each state's requirements. However, we are eager to help students by issuing alternative certificates of participation upon request.

Students who require specific documentation must make a request to their Student Services Coordinator and may need to be individually connected with the Administrator to fulfill their request. They may need to supply specific parameters or examples of qualifying standards and documentation, and will need to make clear how frequently they will need documentation.

Certificates of participation for CE or PD credit hours do not represent or stand in place of a full LifeWays Early Childhood Certificate. These certificates of participation (in any format) strictly represent a student's attendance to in-person class sessions, and are considered separate from the LifeWays Certification.

To be considered a LifeWays graduate with a full certificate one must:

- Attend all 28 days of in-person classes
- Complete their independent Integration of Learning Requirements and mentoring program
- AND have fully paid their tuition for the training
